

Abstract

An integrally formed one-piece frame for an apparatus that supplies a pressurized fluid, such as a pressure washer. The frame includes a base that supports a power unit, at 5 least one leg integrally formed with the base, and a handle integrally formed with the base. The frame is designed such that it is stackable with other frames before the power unit is coupled to the base.